Director's Note

Welcome, and thank you for joining us. What you're about to see is a carefully choreographed evening of theatrical chaos, where every "mistake" has been rehearsed with incredible precision.

Bringing this production to life has taken countless hours of teamwork, and dedication from an amazing cast, crew and tech team who embraced every challenge with enthusiasm and laughter.

When we took on the task of directing this show neither of us realized exactly how challenging certain aspects would be, but we rose to the challenge. Sharing this journey together has been a privilege. We would like to extend our thanks to our families for their patience and support.

To the wonderful supporters of The Canebrake Players, thank you for believing in us and helping us continue to bring performances to our community. Your encouragement, generosity, and attendance make productions like this possible.

We would also like to express our sincere appreciation to the Alabama Power Service Organization for its generous support and commitment to our community. Your investment in the arts and community service helps make productions like this possible, and we are truly grateful.

Finally, we would like to dedicate this production to David White. Your guidance, encouragement, and countless hours of help were truly invaluable. This production would not have been possible without your generosity and expertise. This show is dedicated to you with heartfelt gratitude,

Now, sit back, enjoy the mayhem, and remember...if everything seems to be going wrong, then we're doing exactly what we intended.

Enjoy the show!

Allison and Laurie

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Allison & Laurie". The word "Allison" is written in a cursive style, followed by an ampersand "&" and the word "Laurie" in a similar cursive script.
